

... Energy efficiency is one way to reduce energy poverty...

Nope,
still can't see it

Energy efficiency today will cut energy bills tomorrow

Dear Member of the European Parliament,

You will soon decide the EU's energy efficiency policy for the next decade.

Nearly 11% of the EU's population is unable to properly heat their homes. Energy efficiency can lower energy bills and make homes warmer. The Council is falling short in its energy efficiency policy. Consumers need you to:

- Focus energy efficiency measures on households, especially the energy poor.
- Set an EU 2030 energy efficiency target at 40% and ensure its proper monitoring.
- Close loopholes by including transport in the energy saving obligations.

Don't forget, energy policy can be complementary to social policy!

The Consumer Voice in Europe

www.beuc.eu

Member of the European Parliament,

Brussels/Strasbourg